Kongeriget Danmark

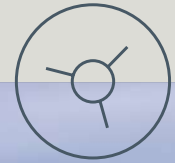

THE KINGDOM OF DENMARK

Denmark, a northern country consisting of 443 islands, is surrounded by the cold North and Baltic Seas on all sides.

It rains here all year round, while the air temperature varies between 10 and 20°C. Glaciers formed the plain and left numerous basins of lakes and swamps.

How could you ever live around? But people do live here. And they don't just live but cruise happily through life.

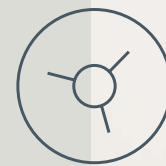

Hygge

FINDING HAPPINESS IN SIMPLE THINGS

Hygge—time to feel safe—originated and thrives right here in Denmark.

This could be moments of watching the rain or hours spent with family. It's the smell of the sea and the wind whistling or moments alone with yourself—without troubles and never-ending hustle of thoughts.

You just serenely and silently watch life passing by.

Horsens

20 km away from Møllehøj, the highest point of plain Denmark, the town of Horsens extends along the shores of the fjord among the north winds and cold waves of the Baltic Sea.

Here ducks nest in the coastal waters all year round, while the salty air appeals for traveling to faraway lands.

No wonder that Horsens is the birthplace of the eminent navigator and explorer Bering.

Back in the XV century, the town was granted a charter of trade and began to develop rapidly. It still doesn't stop.

HORSENS

Eklekticisme

ECLECTICISM

Denmark knows how to balance incompatibilities. That's why numerous historical monuments and high-tech, state-of-the-art pieces of architecture coexist peacefully here.

Attention to detail and simplicity. Conservatism and liberality. Convenience and beauty.

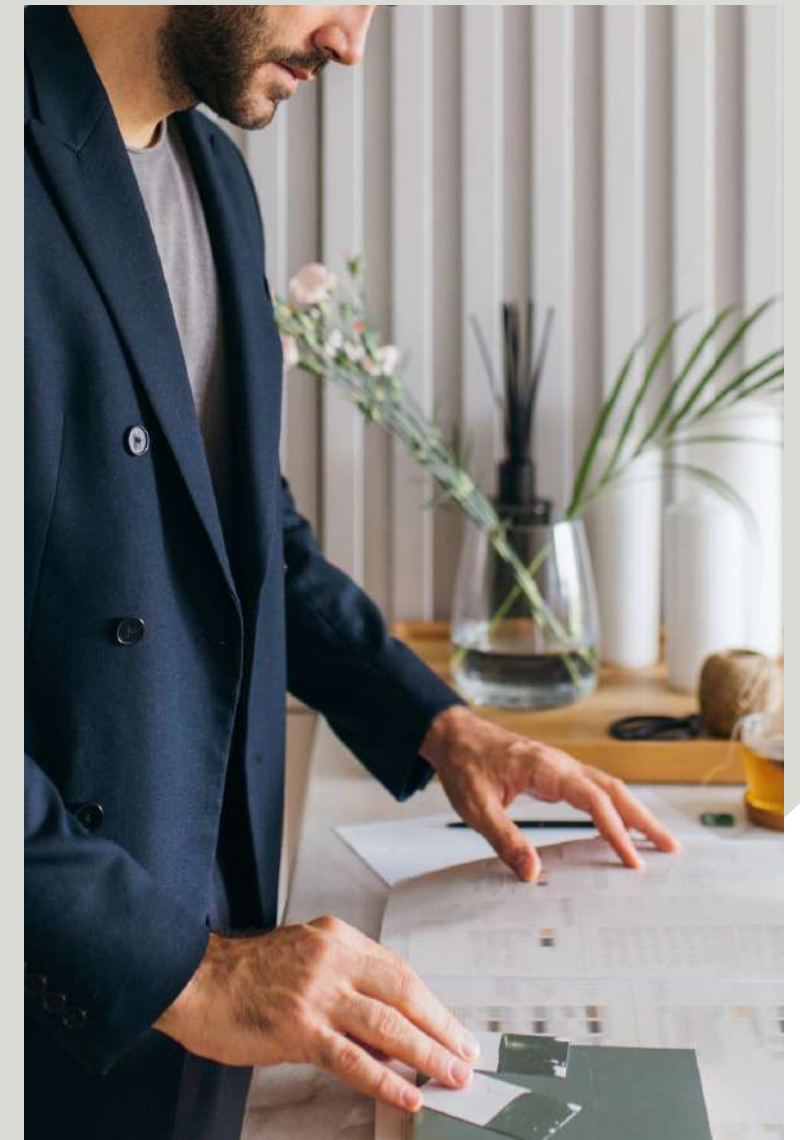

Møllehøj

HAPPY PEOPLE CREATE
BEAUTIFUL THINGS

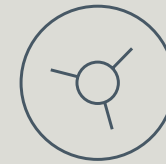

And it's here—on the shores of the fjord, to the cries of seagulls, and thinking of people—where the design bureau Møllehøj was established. The Danish desire for stability as well as for the life without worries and shocks—all of that is translated into the bureau's products.

And the most important thing is the elusive Hygge that you can still catch for a moment before the whirlwind of the working day or the evening home hustle and plunge into safe, calm, and confident feelings.
